

RAVENS IN OUR COMMUNITY

PLAYWORKS MARYLAND SOIRÉE FOR PLAY

Ravens charitable partner Playworks Maryland hosted its annual Soirée for Play event at the American Visionary Arts Museum in downtown Baltimore on November 2. The event featured dinner, raffles and several favorite childhood games like four square for attendees to play throughout the evening. DT Carl Davis spoke to the audience about the importance of recess and physical exercise to him as a child, while accepting the Partner in Play Award on behalf of the Ravens organization. The award recognizes outstanding organizations that contribute to the Playworks' mission of promoting physical fitness and teamwork to youth on the playground. Now in their fourth year of partnership with Playworks Maryland, the Ravens continue to support this goal through the team's PLAY 60 and Hometown Huddle initiatives. Together, the two organizations have partnered to serve over 40,000 youth in the Baltimore community to date.

SOUTHWEST TRADING PLACES

DT Brandon Williams and S Tony Jefferson surprised travelers at Baltimore/Washington International Thurgood Marshall Airport on Oct. 30. The two Ravens players shocked fans when they greeted and took photos with them as they waited to board their flights. Both players filled the airport with laughter when they traded places with Southwest Airlines employees to scan boarding passes and announce upcoming flights. After all passengers had boarded their flight, the players then headed to the runway to load luggage onto the plane. Trading Places is an annual event in which Ravens players work to brighten the days of fans by taking on ordinary jobs in the community.

CELEBRITY CORNHOLE CHALLENGE

On Monday, Oct. 30, local celebrities from the Baltimore community came together to compete in the Beltway Boards and Brews Celebrity Cornhole Tournament to benefit the Players Philanthropy Fund (PPF). K Justin Tucker, DT Brandon Williams, CB Brandon Carr, DT Carl Davis, OLB Matthew Judon, DT Willie Henry and LS Morgan Cox represented the Ravens during the event. Throughout the evening, PPF donors were paired with Baltimore celebrities for dinner, drinks and a bracket-style cornhole tournament. In total, 15 celebrities participated in the event, ranging from famous talk show personalities to professional athletes. Founded by former Ravens K Matt Stover, the Players Philanthropy Fund continues to offer athletes, entertainers and other philanthropists an opportunity to create a dedicated foundation that supports their charitable initiatives.
